The Great Seal of North Carolina has seen many revisions since the inception of the States of North and South Carolina. The history of the Great Seal illustrates the thought and liberty that was important in the design of the seal itself.

“The design shall be a representation of the figures of Liberty standing... and a scroll with the word “constitution” inscribed there on in her right hand. Plenty, the second figure is sitting with the contents of the horn of plenty rolling out. This represents the plentiful supply of harvest from our state. The background contains a depiction of mountains and a side view of a three masted ship located on the ocean. The adaption date of the Halifax Resolves is commemorated on the State Seal as it is already on the State Flag. This “serves as a constant reminder of the people of this state’s commitment to liberty.” The States motto – “Esse Quam Videri” – “To be rather than to seem” holds true after all these years.

A woven tapestry has been commissioned to create a lasting tribute of the Great Seal of North Carolina. Numbers are limited with only few items available.
